The LOCKS (No. 21) Dickinson Landing

COMING EVENTS CASTING THEIR SHADOWS BEFORE: THE DISAPPEARANCE OF THIS BEAUTIFUL AND HISTORIC SECTION OF THE ST. LAWRENCE RIVER.

Here, in the early summer of 1957, preparations are already under way for the commencement of development work on one particular phase of power project: the temporary rock-fill cofferdam for the diversion of river through excavated channel across the Long Sault Island and the draining of rapids section of river for work 'in the dry'.

Photo: Courtesy John Witham

At the West entrance to the Cornwall Canal - Dickinson Landing - its Guard Lock (No. 21) was just that. Its sidekick - The WEIR, pictured above, teamed up for two very important cogs in a very big machine - the canal system.